Syria's opposition, led by the Free Syrian Army (FSA), issued a statement on Thursday condemning the UN's decision to send a de-escalation envoy to the country, saying it was a sign of the international community's failure to address the conflict.

The statement came as the UN's Special Envoy for Syria Staffan de Mistura announced plans to send a new envoy to Syria, as part of efforts to de-escalate the conflict.

In a statement released on Thursday, the Syrian opposition said it had not been consulted by the UN on the decision to send the envoy. It also said that the move was not in line with the principles of the Geneva II peace talks, which aimed to end the conflict through a political solution.

The statement read: "The decision to send a new envoy to Syria is an attempt to bypass the political process and continue the military approach, which has not yielded any results.

"The UN must be committed to the principles of the Geneva II talks and respect the will of the Syrian people to achieve a political solution through dialogue and negotiations, without the presence of the international community's armed forces.

"We demand that the UNUN should respect the will of the Syrian people and stop its attempts to impose its will on the country through the military approach, which has only led to more destruction and suffering."
Tawheed (Islamic monotheism) is the greatest foundation of Islamic belief. In fact, a person is considered as Muslim if he/she accepts that there is only one Lord and that He is Allah and that Muhammad sallallahu `alayhi wa sallam (may Allah exalt his mention) is His slave and His messenger to humanity.

Almighty Allah says in the Noble Quran (what means): “Allah is neither begets nor was He born.”[Quran 2:255] It is known as Soorah Al-Ikhlas in the Quran.

The Creator does not create only in the sense of bringing things into being, as He is the One, only such an accompaniment of movements and instruments. He is the One, only such that there is none with whom He keeps company or whom He misses in his absence.

Islam, Allah is known by His Names and Attributes and the manifestation of these names in the universe.

Another aspect of Tawheed in Islam is that it exemplifies the equality and unity of all people in their relation with Allah. Thus, peoples of different social strata were not created by separate deities with varying levels of power. Since this would violate the boundedness by putting barriers between them instead of social dimension of Tawheed states that the same Allah created everyone, and so all people have the same fundamental essence. In fact, the noblest person in Allah’s Sight is the one who is most Allah-conscious.

Prophet Muhammad ﷺ said: “Your Lord is One. You are from Adam and Adam was created from dust. An Arab is not superior to a non-Arab, nor a white person over a black person, except for his fear and righteousness.”[Quran 56:14]

Another verse: “He is the First and the Last”[Quran 57:3].

The Creator does not create only in the sense of bringing things into being, in other words. He is not only a Starter, the sense of bringing things into being, and acting upon it, he experiences a noticeable change in his life. By understanding whose Lord is as well as the purpose of his creation, he will be able to achieve success in this life and the next. This success emanates from the following grounds:

A believer in this testimony can never be unaware of it. He believes in Allah, Who is the Creator of the heavens and the earth, the Master of the universe and its Sustainer. After this belief, he does not regard anything in the world as a stranger to himself. He looks on everything in the universe as belonging to the same Lord he himself belongs to. Allah Almighty Says (what means): “Say O Muhammad: ‘To whom belongs all the heavens and the earth?’ Sabah al-An‘lamah.”

His sympathy, love and service are not confined to any particular sphere or group. His vision is broadened. His intellectual horizon widens, and his outlook becomes as liberal and as boundless as is the Kingdom of Allah. How can this width of vision and breadth of mind be achieved by an atheist, a polytheist or one who believes in a deity supposed to possess limited and defective powers like a man?

This belief produces in man the highest degree of self-respect and self-esteem. The believer knows that Allah Alone is the Possessor of all power, and that none besides Him can benefit or harm a person, or provide for his needs, or give and take away life or wield authority or influence. This conviction makes him indifferent to: independent of other powers other than those of Allah. He never loses his head in the world of man and he becomes ready to sacrifice his life and property and all other things for the sake of Allah. Such profound convictions result from no other belief than belief in Allah Alone.

There are two things which make a man cowardly: (1) fear of death and love of life, and (2) the idea that there is someone else besides Allah who can take away life, and that man - by adopting certain devices - can ward off death. In la ilaha illallah concepts and ideas, drives away both these ideas. The first idea goes out of his mind because he knows that his life and property and everything else really belong to Allah, and he becomes ready to sacrifice all for the pleasure of Allah. He gets rid of the second idea because he knows that no weapon, no man or animal has the power of taking away his life. Allah alone has the power to do so. A time has been ordained for him, and all the powers of the world combined cannot take away anyone’s life before that time. It is for this reason that no one is braver than the one who has faith in Allah. Nothing can daunt and hurt him not even the strongest tempest of adversity and the mightiest of armies.

The belief in la ilaha illallah creates an attitude of peace and contentment. Purges the mind of jealousy, envy and hatred, which are the impurities of resorting to hate and envying others. The believer understands that wealth is in Allah’s Hands, and he is not possessed of it as He Wills, that honour, power, republi cans, and the like, are in the hands of others, and are subjected to His Will, and He bestows them as He Wills, and that man’s duty is only to endeavor and to struggle fairly.

The Congress may appoint a new Bihar chief in place of Ashok Choudhary following recent turbulence in the state unit which saw senior party leaders being sent to Patna to stave off any possible break up. Sources said Choudhary was not present at the meetings held by Congress Vice President Rahul Gandhi with party legislators from the state on Wednesday and yesterday. Leader of Congress Legislative Party Sadanand Singh said they discussed how to strengthen the party in the state in the aftermath of the collapse of the grand alliance when the JD-S decided to snap ties with Radha Krushna Jata and join hands with the BJP to form government in the state in July. Congress was the third ally in the alliance.

A Congress legislator, who did not want to be named, said the leadership was unhappy with Choudhary over reports about possible defections.

The legislator said that Choudhary had been state unit chief for over four years and there is a strong view among senior leaders that the party should appoint a new face at the helm in the state. “The change will be made to keep the caste equations in mind,” he said.

Madrid to block Catalonia independence bid

Spanish Prime Minister Mariano Rajoy yesterday took legal action against an independence referendum in Catalonia, with a "tangible" act of disobedience.

Rajoy gathered his cabinet for an emergency meeting to formally ask Spain’s Court of Auditors to once again rule against the planned referendum on Catalan independence.

He also said all 914 mayors in Catalo- via’s 38 provinces would be forced to obey their "obligation to prevent or end illegal acts," which he said is unconstitutional. "This refers to any action that is so serious that they try to impose it in a hasty, abrupt, and illegal way," he said without taking place. Rajoy said.

Catalonia’s regional parliament, which is controlled by separatists, voted on Wednesday to push ahead with the referendum in the wealthy northeastern region, sparking the country’s deepest political crisis in 40 years.

Spain’s top prosecutor, meanwhile, said he could seize and "criminal charges could be lodged" against separatists' leaders on the grounds of "independence," he said.

Rajoy told the European Union military ministers that "the task of informing the public" about the referendum is "one of the most important of our time.

It is a duty of all of us to inform the country and bring the debate to a conclusion as soon as possible," he said.

Catalonia now has its own police force, which has arrested people who have tried to prevent the referendum. Rajoy yesterday promised to "block the vote".

He said the referendum was illegal and the central government would use its legal powers to stop it.

Meanwhile, Rajoy has vowed to "block the referendum" on the region's independence.

The Spanish government has already blocked the regional government from appointing its own judges to handle the referendum.

Rajoy said he would use the full powers of the Spanish constitution to prevent the referendum from going ahead.

The Madrid government has said the referendum is illegal and threatens to use its legal powers to stop it.

Rajoy’s cabinet has been asked to prepare for a referendum that could take place if the central government is not willing to "recognize the referendum results.

More than 100,000 people have signed a petition calling for a referendum on Catalonia’s independence. The petition was submitted to the regional parliament Wednesday.

The Atlantic hurricane season first brought in a way that flattened tens of thousands of homes at Washington, DC, weathered its own storm — yet another political storm — apparently more powerful than the Category Four Hurricane that devastated Texas. Irma, which roared in the White House was not enough, nature sent winds ripping across the Cow Boy State, to be followed by another in the back yard of the United States — the Caribbean.

Qatar reiterates efforts to end violation of international human rights law

Qatar reiterated efforts to end violation of international human rights law, its commitment to the rule of law, and human rights as fundamental principles of the country's legislation and practice. The Permanent Representative of the State of Qatar to the United Nations, HE Sheikha Alya Ahmed bin Saif Al Thani, pointed out that the lack of protection of civilians resulted in atrocities and gross violations of human rights, leading to the population's mass migration across borders and continents, with serious humanitarian and security consequences due to unprecedented waves of refugees in modern history, pointing out that the realisation of the principle of the responsibility to protect on a global scale could prevent the crises experienced by the world in the recent past by using human and physical capacities in the process of development and the stability of societies.

We should head towards a European Monetary Fund but this should in no way be mixed up with a (euro zone) budget.

Germany's small parties might give kingmaker outside watchers because of the lack of a central coalition, it's aftermath may turn out to be more exciting.

Christopher Whelan of the London-based Center for European Reform has argued that a Merkel-led minority government is a realistic scenario. It would, he wrote, be better for German democracy than an unstable right-wing 'grand coalition' between the CDU and CSU. However, the German parties would need to work with the different opposition parties on specific issues.

Germany has never had a federal minority government, and such an experiment would be exciting to watch. At the very least, it would allow the smaller parties to show their strengths and weaknesses to voters in a high-stakes, four-year political game. It's hard, however, to imagine Merkel wanting to play this game in what may be her last term in power. She may see the threat of a minority government in coalition talks with Schulz, but he will want to extend the current, safe, governing coalition

Germany has never had a federal minority government, and such an experiment would be exciting to watch. At the very least, it would allow the smaller parties to show their strengths and weaknesses to voters in a high-stakes, four-year political game.

Up to a million people were ordered to leave coastal areas of Florida and neighboring Georgia — the biggest mass evacuation in the US in a dozen years. It ‘will truly be devastating,’ warned the head of the US Federal Emergency Management Agency, Brock Long.

Barrelling across the Caribbean, the rare Category 5 hurricane weakened on Wednesday with winds and torrential rain, wrecking destitute state of Greene County, Georgia, where 60 percent of homes were wrecked. “It looks as if an enormous lawnmower descended from the sky and drove over the island,” witness Mardou Bohanan told NOUS public broadcaster.

“Homes have been flattened. People are homeless. You can see it in their eyes,” Bohanan added, saying thousands of people were losing supermarkets. In its western Campbell, some neighborhoods ended up to 25% per hour, an intensity that it sustained for 33 hours — the longest of any storm since satellite monitoring began in the 1970s.

Devastation was left in the storm’s wake. The international Red Cross said 1.2 million people had already been hit by Irma, a number that could rise to 26 million.

Pope urges forgiveness in Colombia

The pope urged Colombians yesterday to "encourage us to take the first step toward redemption," in the face of the country’s civil conflict and promote forgiveness to heal the wounds of war—though much violence.

"Your commitment of everyone," Francis said: "This determination help us flee from the temptation to vengeance and the satisfaction of short-term partisan interests."

In a halcyon address late to crowds of young people near Bogota’s cathedral, Francis urged them to “dream big” for the country’s future. "Your youthfulness, makes youcapable of something very difficult in the forgone. Forging those who have hurt us," he said.

FARC leader Rodrigo Londoño also hailed the Pope, thanking his thanks to Francis “for supporting the peace and defending social and environmental justice.” Colombia’s president rejected the accord in a referendum last year. A referendum was later pushed through Congress. Santos thanked Francis for coming to encourage us to take the first step toward reconciliation,” in a speech yesterday.

Qatar Stock Exchange’s (QSE) CEO Rashid bin Ali Al Mansoori has been re-elected as a board member of the World Federation of Exchanges (WFE) during its 2017 annual meetings held in Bangkok.

The meeting also witnessed the election of board member representing the world's different regions, including the Americas, Asia-Pacific, and Europe-Middle East Africa. QSE said in a statement yesterday.

Al Mansoori was elected by the WFE's general assembly to represent the Europe-Middle East Africa region for a three-year term.

The WFE CEO expressed his satisfaction for being elected as a board member of WFE, which is the largest international platform for world stock exchanges and options exchanges.

"Winning the elections for the post of WFE board member is an important achievement for Qatar Stock Exchange and an indication of its prominent regional and global position," Al Mansoori said. "We are happy to be part of an organization that represents markets worldwide that are fair, transparent, well-regulated and that play an important role in the economies of our respective countries."

WFE is a central reference point for the securities industry, and for exchanges themselves. It offers members guidance on their business strategies, and on improvements and harmonisation of their management practices. In addition, it develops and promotes standards in markets, publishes research on topical subjects, supports reform, international cooperation and coordination among regulators. WFE exchanges are home to more than 45,000 listed companies and the WFE statistics database covers more than 350 indicators and 70 years of data from exchanges worldwide.

Al Mansoori held several meetings yesterday and on Wednesday with senior officials of a number of banks and international stock exchanges and addressed a number of issues of concern to exchanges and investors.

WFE reflects the commitment of member stock exchanges to generally accepted international standards to promote investments. WFE is an important reference point for many international investors about the investment atmosphere in the member markets.

-established in 1995, the Doha Securities Market (DSM) officially commenced operations in May 1997. Since then, it has grown to become one of the leading stock markets in the region.

DSM was later renamed the Qatar Stock Exchange (QSE). It currently has 46 listed companies. The primary aim of QSE is to offer local and international investors a platform through which they can trade fairly and efficiently.

Amazon seeks bids for HQ2 to invest $5bn

Washington AFP

Yonder giant Amazon announced plans yesterday for a second North American headquarters, calling on cities to submit proposals for a new hub in which it will invest more than $5bn.

The second headquarters, to be called HQ2, will be a “full equal to our Seattle headquarters,” said Jeff Bezos, Amazon founder and chief executive in a statement. “Amazon HQ2 will bring locations of dollars in upfront and ongoing investments, and tens of thousands of new headquarters. We’re excited to find a second home.”

The announcement highlights the surprise growth of Amazon, which was founded two decades ago as an online bookseller and has grown into one of the world’s largest retailing, mobile payments and video, cloud computing and one-day delivery companies.

The company, which has more than 380,000 employees worldwide, said it would add as many as 30,000 jobs for the new headquarters. It is already the eighth-largest US employer.

Amazon said it would be seeking cities with large and diverse populations, with areas with more than one million people—from which there are about 100—”with a stable and business-friendly environment.”

Cities “that think big,” it said, would consider urban or suburban locations with the potential to attract and retain strong, skilled and diverse talent and are aiming for “communities that think big and creatively when considering locations and real estate options.”

Amazon’s campus in the northeast US state of Washington currently employs more than 40,000 people scattered across 33 facilities and 750,000 square meters (81 million square feet) of office space, according to a company fact sheet.

Amazon has dozens of warehouses filled with parts around the world and has invested heavily in artificial intelligence, resulting in the Echo “smart” speakers and its voice-controlled Alexa digital assistant.

The company recently bought up small US grocery chain Whole Foods Market for more than $15bn, which will help its ambitions in that sector.

Company founder Bezos, who also owns the Washington Post newspaper and the private space exploration firm Blue Origin, briefly overtook Bill Gates as the world’s richest individual earlier this year due to a surge in Amazon’s share price.

Oberbank, Austria’s seventh-biggest lender, with a balance sheet of roughly €20bn ($23bn) due to host a signing ceremony on September 21 at its headquarters in the city of Linz with reeves from Iran’s central bank and Finance Ministry inChief Executive Franz Digital German said.

Executives from 10-12 Ira- nian banks will also be present for the signing of the agreement, which will enable Oberbank to provide credit to Austrian com panies doing business in Iran. Oberbank told Reuters yesterday.

"We think it is the first extraneous bank to reach such an agreement,” Gasselsberger said.

However, many banks have stayed away for fear of marketlv breaking remaining sanctions, which could lead to trade sanctions, according to a comment in the financial daily "Oberbank, Austria’s"

Emirates may hold back order over A380 concerns

London Bloomberg

E mirates, the world’s biggest long-haul airline, is hold ing off ordering seven in-flight entertainment units for an order of more than 100 double-decker aircrafts.

While Airbus is pushing a plane that it’s selling in the US, Emirates faces a hold-up in ordering the entertainment unit for the A380 aircraft.

Airbus announced in July that it would slash A380 production to a night a year in 2019, down from 15 this year and 28 in 2016, casting doubt over the $25 billion project that won’t change even if the Toulouse, France-based aircraft manufacturer gets another purchase contract before the end of this year, unless the number of plane orders drops, especially high, Chief Executive Officer Tom Enders said at the time.

Emirates, the No. 1 superjumbo buyer, with 74 A380s in operation or firm orders and commitments for more than 100 planes.

Airbus offered an enhanced version of the A380 in June featuring a new floor-saving, weightcutting, which combined with an already-announced layout system accommodation and more flight hours would save 13 percent per seat cost.

Emirates is exploring an upgrade with a view to buying 20 more planes, though Clark, who originally campaigned for a more significant upgrade feature new engines, has said he doesn’t need the extra capacity.

Emirates also needs to consider how to deal with its cash flows.

The airline cut flights earlier this year after production halt. He added the company is no longer planning to slow A380 production to one aircraft a month as of May 2018. The reduction means that the company is no longer building even on a per-plane basis. Airbus gave up on January on recouping the program’s

French CGT power and oil workers to join labour reform strike

Paris Reuters

Oil and power sector workers from France’s CGT trade union will stage a 24-hour nationwide strike next week to protest against the government’s planned labour reforms but limited support from other unions could blunt its impact.

CGT sector workers will join the protest and block all inland and outbound destinations of petroleum products carriers, said a union official.

Frents of and gas major Total, Europe’s biggest refiner which operates five refineries in France, said it had taken measures to protect consumers.

A CGT union official at Total said the strike on Tuesday would be a production halt. He added the oil sector was however ready for an unlimited strike if other industries took that course for the following days.

French President Emmanuel Macron’s (pic turred) government announced a new round of August tax measures to boost labour regulations and drive down unemployment rates.

However, France’s biggest trade union the CFDT, and the other smaller hardline FO union, which usually ally with CGT, are expected to join the strike.

CGT oil sector workers kicked off a 24-hour strike last year over contested labour reforms, but their opposition Labour Party has vowed to vote against it.

However, she is vulnerable to challenge in the future if the legislation comes under dispute during the four-weeks, which is a least six months’ lead up to the next Labour Party leader election. Interior minister Bernard Cazeneuve was said by several newspapers to be unhappy with the plans.

West Indies' Jason Holder celebrates the wicket of England's captain Joe Root during the third International Test match at Lords cricket ground in London, yesterday.

Holder leads Windies recovery at Lord's

West Indies captain Jason Holder started in a dramatic fashion as wickets tumbled on a remarkable first day of the third and deciding Test against England at Lord's yesterday. When play had started, the visitors still had to score 183. But the 24-year-old fast bowler -- who had taken 10 for 105 in the first innings of this series -- had India reeling at 7-94. And in a reply to West Indies' seemingly moderate 26 for 26, there were 117 -- with the match all out -- so late in the English season and the visitors had a one-day advantage over one another of either side of 182.

But never before had a Test at the 'home of cricket' started so late in the English season and the visitors had a one-day advantage over one another of either side of 182.

Jimenez also competes on the senior tour and already holds the European Tour record as the oldest player to win a major with his 2016 Spanish Open title win.

Michelle Wie withdrew from next week’s Evian Championship citing a medical advice following surgery to her appendix.

The 27-year-old, who has not played since going out before the final round of the Canadian Pacific Women's Open on August 27, had advised to her to rest rather than travel to France for the final major of the season.

"Unfortunately my doctors have advised me to continue resting which means I have to withdraw from the Evian Championship," the 27-year-old Wie wrote in a post on Instagram.

Manu Tuilagi, 26, has not started a Test since Australia coach Michael Cheika ended his run of 11 consecutive starts with Western Australia's run to the semi-finals of the Rugby Championship.

"There’s been a lot of talk amongst the team around what Saturday is going to mean, in perhaps a similar mindset to the way we were last week," said Cheika.

Australia will have the unfamiliar experience of heading into potentially hostile territory for a home test match when they take on a resurgent South Africa side in the Rugby Championship in Perth tomorrow.

Western Australia rugby has been in open rebellion since the Western Force were kicked out of Super Rugby and the chance to make some kind of point to the Australian Rugby Union at the home stadium will be too good an opportunity to pass up.

Australian coach Michael Cheika is hoping the tests will be limited to the wearing of T-shirts in force blue and suggested the Wallabies could be an agent of conciliation to the Perth public.

"There’s been a lot of talk amongst the team around what Saturday is going to mean, in perhaps a similar mindset to the way we were last week," said Cheika.
Bayern star Ribery relishing PSG clash

BERLIN

Franck Ribery is relishing Bayern Munich’s Champions League showdown against Paris Saint-Germain with the German winger insisting he will not retire even if the German wins this season’s European title.

Bayern are at Hoffenheim on Saturday in the Bundesliga but open their Champions League campaign at home in Andorinha next Tuesday in front of 18,000 fans.

PSG then host Carlo Ancelotti’s Bayern at the Parc des Princes on September 27 at a wipeout that could decide Group B.

“Paris is a lot stronger than last season. It will be a super game. I hope we are all in top form. And we need to go out thinking ‘we’re Bayern. No one can stop us.’ Wherever we play, we win,” Ribery told German daily Bild.

“Anyone who fears Paris, stays in Munich.”

Last month, PSG paid £22m (euros 200m) for Neymar and signed French striker Kylian Mbappe on loan with an option to buy him next year in a deal that could reach £120m.

Ousmane Dembele cost Barcelona 148m euros from Borussia Dortmund as the Catalan giants seek to replace Neymar.

Formal transfer fees are a sign of the times. “I can only say that those responsible need to understand again that playing football is a joy. It’s fun and you play for your shirt and for the fans,” he said.

“Don’t know what I’d have been worth when I was 25, perhaps a lot more money. It doesn’t matter.”

“When I wanted to be a professional, my aim was to play on television, so my family could see me. I want to play for money.”

The 34-year-old Ribery has been at Bayen since 2007 and his contract expires next June.

He was part of the Bayern team that beat Borussia Dortmund 2-1 in the 2013 Champions League final in London when Arjen Robben scored the winner.

However, the French star said he would not hang up his boots even the Bavarian lift the trophy in May’s final in Kiev.

Aston Villa and Manchester City are in the FA Cup quarter-finals for the first time in 22 years, with both teams seeking to reach the final in May’s Wembley.
Del Potro shocks Federer to book Nadal showdown

Juan Martin del Potro of Argentina celebrates victory over Roger Federer of Switzerland during the 2017 US Open men’s finals in New York on Wednesday. The Argentine knocked world number one for the first time in his career and became the 17th man in history to win a Grand Slam title.

It was a dream come true for del Potro, who only qualified for the US Open after a US Open wild card last year.

Federer gave another dig at his No. 1 ranking, saying he was the best player in the world.

Federer, 36, said he was going to his 18th Grand Slam final in the same way as last year.

Federer, who has won 18 Grand Slam titles, said he wasn’t going to let del Potro’s victory affect his preparations for the US Open.

Federer said he was looking forward to the US Open and was confident of winning it.

He added: “I’m sure I can do well there and I’m confident in my game.”

Federer said he was looking forward to playing against del Potro in the US Open semi-finals.

Federer’s coach, Severin Luthi, said the Swiss star had played better than his US Open semi-final against del Potro.

Toronto fest starts with Borg/McEnroe drama

Toronto AP

Though seldom a smash on the big screen, tennis movies have taken centre court at the Toronto International Film Festival, where ‘Borg/McEnroe’ was to open the annual festival yesterday.

The film, starring Shia LaBeouf as John McEnroe and Sverrir Gudnason as Bjorn Borg, is the opening volley in the ten-day Canadian festival, a premiere launching pad for the fall’s most anticipated films.

This year, tennis is getting perhaps its most serious film of the year time ret at the festival, where the Billie Jean King–Bobby Riggs showdown “Battle of the Sexes” is also to premiere, as is the documentary “Love, Match: A Zero” about tennis coach Nick Bollettieri.

The movies arrive conveniently as the US Open nears its final rounds in Flushing New York. That McEnroe, a popular broadcaster, isn’t expected to be in attendance. He has also previously been sceptical of the film, complaining that its filmmakers and performers didn’t meet him before shooting McKenroes has been shown more dubious of tennis movies – and their unconvincing gameplay – as a general year-end match Vanity Fair. “They are all tender.”

LaBeouf may not satisfy McEnroe; the actor isn’t field-handled, for one. But LaBeouf has achieved and uncoiled McEnroe in many-throwing. The Toronto Film Festival will be LaBeouf’s first prominent appearance since his videotaped arrest for public drunkenness and assault.

LaBeouf was seen yalling at Savannah, Georgia, police officers and claiming that “a black man arrested me for being white.” LaBeouf later apologised for his behaviour and said: “My outright disrespect for authority is problematic to say the least, and completely destructive to say the worst. It is a new low. A low home is a bottom.”

“Borg/McEnroe” focuses on the rivalry and DBO Wimbledon finals between the different-tempered tennis ends. It’s a Swedish production, directed by the Danish filmmaker Janus Metz Pedersen. The indie distributor from is expected to release this fall, though no date has yet been announced.

While other sports are covered, Hollywood has typically been reluctant to serve up tennis tales. There was Hitchcock’s “Strangers on a Train,” which featured a tennis star drafted into a diabolical murder plot; Woody Allen’s “Match Point,” and the 2004 romantic-comedy “Wimbledon.”

Most memorable perhaps was Wes Anderson’s “The Royal Tenenbaums,” which included a flashback of Luke Wilson’s tennis pro having a complete meltdown: committing 72 unforced errors and, mid-match, throwing his shoes and socks.

Mobster musical has Venice singing

Venice AP

A mob movie flying but there’s always time for a sing along. In ‘Love and Bullets,’ a playful mafia musical premiering at the Venice film festival, the crooks really can croon.

The latest adventure from Italian brothers Marco and Antonio-Manetti is an exploration of the power of love to sway even the hardest of hearts – but also a vibrant homage to Italy’s southern city Naples.

“Naples is depicted in the news, in films and books on TV as an ugly city, a city that’s been gobbled up by crime,” Antonio told AFP TV. “But just taking a stroll through the streets of the centre shows you the city is not that.”

The coastal city at the foot of Mount Vesuvius is the heartland of the ruthless Camera organised crime group, which was immortalised in the 2004 best picture film ‘Gomorrah’ by Roberto Saviano and in a popular spin-off television series.

“Naples is not just a city inhabited by a criminal group. There is life and it’s a story about a Naples made of feelings, of families and of colour.”

The film, competing for the prized Golden Lion under its Italian title ‘Amore e Pistole’ may hope to defend Neapolitans – who are all too quick to cash in on the mafia cliché.

“We joke that while in Paris the symbolic site is the Eiffel Tower, in Rome the Colosseum, in China the Great Wall, in Naples it’s the Sails of Scampia,” a cast member said.

“Instead of complaining the Neapolitans turn it into business, inventing a tour for American tourists.”

When in doubt, Pres-ident Donald Trump has a ready-made response to any questions: “We’ll see.”

On Wednesday, Trump delivered his go-to line repeatedly. Asked if he would be willing to testify before Harvey told: “We’ll see.” On his plan to negotiate nuclear and missile pro-duction, he was asked: “We’ll see.” And, repeatedly: “We’ll see.”

Trump has deployed the phrase as he spoke about the possibility of peace deal between beads and Palestinian: “We have a great group of people. We’ll see what happens,” he said.
