Against the backdrop of the Iran-Iraq war, which threatened the stability and development of the entire region in the 1980s of the Gulf Cooperation Council (GCC) — a bloc of six, booming hydrocarbons-rich Arab states that was designed to boost members’ clout.

Sheikh Sabah won the UN’s “exemplary humanitarian leadership” prize in 2014 for his work and for helping big donor meets Then-Secretary-General Ban Ki-moon praised his “outstanding generosity towards Syrians and Iraqis in need.”

He returned to the diplomatic breach in 2017 amid the near-breakup of the GCC, when Saudi Arabia, the United Arab Emirates, and others cut ties with Iran and imposed a blockade on Qatar. Sheikh Sabah repeatedly tried to break to the end of the crisis, shuttling across the region and visiting US President Donald Trump at the White House — but he passed away before reaping the fruits of his mediation.

Sheikh Sabah to solve the crisis were praise for mediation efforts led by H H Sheikh Sabah Al Ahmad Al Sabah at Al Sabah. May Allah have mercy on you and forgive you, and make you rest in paradise. We bear witness to Allah that we have not seen anything in you except what was good for the Arab world. Secure condolences from Qatar to government and people of sisterly Kuwait and to the Arab and Islamic nations.

Qatar takes part in global symposium of IAEA

The symposium sheds light on the areas and contents of assistance that the Incident and Emergency Centre can provide to raise awareness of the centre’s role and work methods, as well as to define information, education and communication activities within the framework of the technical cooperation program and the procedures that must be followed to start these activities.

The symposium was attended by workers in the competent authorities that have responsibilities in preparing and responding to nuclear and radiological emergencies at various levels, including regulatory authorities, emergency support institutions, workers in international organizations and nuclear and radiological specialists in the relevant institutions.

It is worth mentioning that the newly-established Incident and Emergency Centre in Qatar is in 2023 in response to the increased number of nuclear and radiological accidents as well as associated with a growing concern over nuclear and radiological materials.

A beacon of peace fades

It was with profound grief and sadness that the world heard about the sad demise of a great leader, visionary, seasoned diplomat and above all a rare beacon of peace and harmony, Kuwait’s Amir H H Sheikh Sabah Al Ahmad Al Jaber Al Sabah, yesterday.

On hearing the news, Qatar’s Amir H H Sheikh Tamim bin Hamad Al Thani, in a speech to the United Nations Security Council on Monday, described the late Amir, who positioned himself as a mediator in the Gulf crisis, as a great leader who was always vouched for dialogue and unity among Arab countries.

The Arab world can never forget the tireless efforts exerted by Kuwait’s Amir to achieve peace and stability wherever possible. Diplomacy is not just a pursuit of peace in one country but in other states also, because of their interdependence.

The late Amir also played an active role in world affairs. The United Nations Secretary-General Antonio Guterres on Monday described him as a great leader who was always vouched for dialogue and unity among Arab countries. The Arab world can never forget the tireless efforts exerted by Kuwait’s Amir to achieve peace and stability wherever possible.

The world is shocked and saddened at the news of the death of the late Amir, who was a true statesman and a great leader. His contribution to the Gulf crisis is the only cause which he fought for till his last breath.

We will forever remember him.

Sheikh Sabah Al Ahmad Al Jaber Al Sabah was a great Kuwaiti Amir with great sorrow and sadness, said Qatar’s Amir H H Sheikh Tamim bin Hamad Al Thani in a speech to the United Nations Security Council on Monday, describing the late Amir as a great leader who was always vouched for dialogue and unity among Arab countries.

The death of HH Sheikh Sabah Al Ahmad Al Jaber Al Sabah brought an outpouring of grief from leaders around the world, including the US President Donald Trump and Kuwaiti Prime Minister Sheikh Nawaf Al Ahmad Al Sabah. Among the hundreds of leaders, one of the most poignant tributes came from His Highness Sheikh Sabah Al Ahmad Al Jaber Al Sabah, the former Prime Minister of Kuwait, who led the country for three decades after the Gulf War. His Highness was remembered as a seasoned diplomat and a rare ruler who “devoted his life to peace and brotherhood.”

Tunisia’s President Kais Saied has been in power for less than a year, but his recent announcement that the country would follow on the path of power, many expressed hope that the former law professor and human rights defender would move the nation forward. President Saied announced a nationwide 40-day mourning period to mourn the loss of a great brother and leader with a big heart.

In Iraq, Kuwait’s Prime Minister Sheikh Nawaf Al Ahmad Al Sabah confirmed his visit to Iraq as part of the measures to support the country’s proud heritage and history. Sheikh Nawaf lauded how HH Sheikh Sabah Al Ahmad Al Jaber Al Sabah, the Ruler of Kuwait, and described him as a great humanitarian and close friend of Iraq. Despite being deeply saddened by the death of His Highness Sheikh Sabah Al Ahmad Al Jaber Al Sabah, the State of Kuwait, and the State of the Kuwaiti people.

Kuwait, including the US and Britain. The diplomat navigated regional feuds and conflicts, including between Qatar and other Arab states that contributed to the ongoing tension in the world, and helped to navigate the human rights and humanitarian aid in times of crisis. She was known for her strong leadership, especially in her role as the head of the Kuwaiti Red Crescent.

A recent murder revived international attention to the issue of capital punishment. Tunisia’s President Kais Saied has backed capital punishment amid uproar over woman’s murder. The President has faced criticism from human rights groups and some in the país’s political opposition, but his stance on the issue has remained consistent.

Amnesty India said it had laid off its staff and suspended all its ongoing campaigns and research work on human rights, and that Indian authorities froze its bank accounts on suspicion of violating rules on foreign funding.

It said in a statement that the authorities’ actions were “the latest in a pattern of witch hunts by human rights organisations by the government of India,” and that the group’s fundraising was being portrayed as money laundering because “fundraising was being portrayed as money laundering because ‘fundraising was being portrayed as money laundering because human rights violations in Delhi” and that the group’s fundraising was being portrayed as money laundering because “human rights violations in Delhi.”

The authorities froze the accounts of Amnesty India and its local partners, saying they had violated “the provisions of the Foreign Exchange Management Act.” The freeze has “imposed an unprecedented financial burden on Amnesty India,” the statement said.

The authorities also targeted its operations in other parts of the country, including in Kashmir and other regions, saying they had violated “the provisions of the Foreign Exchange Management Act.” Amnesty has challenged the “government’s characterization of its activities” and said the freeze was an attempt to “intimidate the organization and its staff.”

Amnesty said the freeze was “arbitrary and illegal” and that it was considering legal action to challenge the freeze.

Amnesty has long been targeted by the authorities in India, which has increasingly cracked down on civil society groups and human rights activists in recent years. The group has been criticized for its role in promoting anti-government protests and for its criticism of the government’s handling of the COVID-19 pandemic.

The move comes as India is experiencing a surge in COVID-19 cases, with the daily number of infections reaching a record high last week. The government has been accused of failing to adequately prepare for the pandemic and of putting political considerations over public health.

Amnesty said it had not yet been able to verify the accuracy of the information provided by the authorities, but that it was “alarmed” by the freeze and was considering legal action to challenge it.

The organization called on the Indian government to immediately release the funds frozen from its bank accounts and to ensure that it is able to continue its work, including in Kashmir, where it has been operating for more than a decade.

The organization also called on the international community to press the Indian government to end its attacks on civil society and human rights defenders, and to support the work of human rights organizations in the country.

Amnesty has a long history of working in India, and has been involved in a range of issues, including human rights abuses in Kashmir, police violence, and the treatment of migrant workers.

The organization has been particularly critical of the Indian government’s handling of the COVID-19 pandemic, and has called for more transparency and accountability in the response to the crisis.

Amnesty said it was “alarmed” by the freeze and was considering legal action to challenge it, and called on the Indian government to immediately release the funds frozen from its bank accounts and to ensure that it is able to continue its work.

With Pakistan's powerful army as one region, the Taliban is the most serious concern for the entire world.

Chinese Foreign Ministry spokesman Lijian Zhao has been a strong critic of the Taliban.

The blast happened in a village in Nowshera, a district of the Khyber Pakhtunkhwa, after the shopkeeper tried to fire a mortar as he tampered with it, officials said.

China yesterday called on local government to investigate the case and hold an accountable for the blast.

"We do not want a terrorist footprint in our country or to allow any entity to pose a threat to any other nation," Abdullah said yesterday.

"We call on all sides to agree to any other nation," Abdullah said yesterday. "We have a common interest in peaceful coexistence and prosperity."
European Commission Meeting in Strasbourg

The European Parliament is set to convene this month in Strasbourg, where politicians will discuss a range of issues, including the recovery plan after the COVID-19 pandemic. The meeting is expected to be marked by a tense atmosphere, with some lawmakers calling for a more inclusive and democratic European Union.

UPDATE

- France
  - The French government has announced plans to extend COVID-19 restrictions for an additional month, with health authorities warning that the situation remains critical.
  - The health minister, Olivier Veran, has said that the country is facing a "second wave" of infections.
- Italy
  - Italy has recorded a slight increase in COVID-19 cases, with the government warning that the situation remains delicate.
  - The prime minister, Mario Draghi, has called for continued adherence to health protocols to prevent a resurgence of the virus.
- Spain
  - Spain has reported a significant drop in COVID-19 cases, with the government attributing the decline to improved vaccination rates and continued adherence to health measures.
  - The health minister, Carolina Darias, has said that the country is now in a "safe zone" and is moving towards a gradual lifting of restrictions.

Global Developments

- UK
  - The government has announced plans to relax COVID-19 restrictions, with the aim of allowing people to return to more normal lives.
  - The health minister, Sajid Javid, has said that the vaccine rollout has been a "game-changer" and that the country is now in a "strong position" to open up.

Economic Data

- EU
  - The EU economy has shown signs of recovery, with GDP growth expected for the first time since the start of the pandemic.
  - The European Commission has forecasted a growth rate of 4.2% for the EU in 2021.

Politics and Security

Responders and emergency managers confirmed on the morning of Friday 23rd that they have successfully tested the world’s first jet paramedic vehicle, which is designed to speed up emergency response times.

The vehicle, a specially modified helicopter, was flown to a simulated casualty site in the UK as part of a 25-minute response time test. The video of the simulated rescue shows Browning, wearing a helmet and goggles, handing a jet-pack-style device to a mock patient while powered by a jet-pack-style device. Browning’s response was crucial as it speeded up the rescue effort.

The test was a joint venture between the British government and private industry, with the aim of improving emergency response times in rural areas. The vehicle uses advanced technology, including a unique jet-pack-style device, to enable faster and safer rescues.

The test was deemed a success, with Browning describing it as “a great start” in the ongoing effort to improve emergency response times.
