Addressing the parliament after taking oath, H H Sheikh Nawaf Nasral AlAmir AlJaber Al Sabah said that Kuwait has been exposed throughout its long history to serious challenges and difficult ordeals which were overcome through collaboration. “Today, our nation is facing acute circumstances and critical challenges which can only be overcome and avoid their consequences by being united, as well as with collaboration of faithful efforts for the best interest of Kuwait and its faithful people,” said His Highness the Amir of Kuwait.

He reiterated commitment to the constitution and the democratic principles. “We affirm our keenness on our constitution and democratic practice, and we are proud that Kuwait is a state of law and institutions, and we are keen on spirit of one family, a virtue well known in our society in Kuwait,” H H said. The National Assembly Speaker Marzouq Al Ghanim described H H the late Amir Sheikh Sabah Al Ahmad Al Jaber Al Sabah as “skillful skipper of Kuwait and the leader who safeguarded the balance and moderation of the State of Kuwait, promoted its status and weight, unaffected by rock- ing storms of politics.”

Al Ghanim was speaking after H H Sheikh Nawaf AlAmir AlJaber took oath before the parliament as Kuwait’s 16th Amir following demise of H H the Amir Sheikh Sabah Al Ahmad Al Jaber Al Sabah. The late Amir, he added, formulated a wise policy that prevented “our country — small in size but huge with its people — from raging fires around us and thus took us to peace and safety.

He then addressed H H the Amir Sheikh Nawaf Al Ahmad Al Jaber saying, “You have inaugu- rated your era to continue the march of your predecessors... an era in which the Kuwaiti people - small in size but huge with its people - from raging fires around us and thus took us to peace and safety. You have inaugurated your era to continue the march of your predecessors... an era in which the Kuwaiti people sea justice, freedom and prosp- erity, an era where law is applied on the big and small, and era where the corrupt cannot enjoy corruption.” Al Ghanim expressed his confidence in the ability of H H the Amir to lead Kuwait towards further progress and prosperity.

The Cabinet considered the topics on the agenda. It approved a draft decision to establish a technical com- mittee regarding the classification and evaluation of con- tractors, suppliers and service providers. This committee is concerned with providing technical advisory opinions on the classification and evaluation of the performance of contractors, suppliers and service providers stipulated in the tenders and auction law and in implementing reg- ulations. The committee submits its recommendations to the department concerned with regulating government procurement at the Ministry of Finance. The Cabinet gave approval to joining the framework agreement to establish the International Solar Alliance, and the Arab Renewable Energy Commission.

Medical education at Qatar in time of COVID-19

Dir Samir's film festival was driven by a love for the Indian community. His interest in film and has recently been accepted into the New York Film Academy for the MFA in film-making. He added that plans are in the works to showcase his next film on the same theme. Inclusive education and the ways in which it is practiced at SIS, Fatima Rama triggered a discussion on the challenges of medical education posed a serious impediment to the curriculum. She expressed hope to transform those ideas into action and strengthen all the existing practices to ensure larger benefits to our children in becoming responsible and productive global citizens. SIS family congratulated Nazia Saleem for the lively discussion that generated a lot of interest and enthusiasm.

From the film festival to the clinical curriculum, the medical education agenda was kept in high gear by the remote delivery of the National Board of Medical Examiners (NBME) exams. They utilized a secure Software that was recorded with Penetropy technology and remotely proctored and zoomed online. The faculty at SIS collaborated on ways in which Indian languages and cultures can be integrated into the preclinical, clerkship, and clinical experiences to ensure larger benefits to our children in becoming responsible and productive global citizens.

The central market is a platform for thousands of importers, wholesalers, and retailers to auction, sell, buy and store imported and locally grown produce.

The market was closed for almost four months due to the coronavirus pandemic. Though since it reopened in July it has seen a steady influx of customers. While lower prices are going to the market, the COVID-19 lockdown has led to an overall fall in footfall for the vendors. Some find the safety measures a little inconvenient, but accept it for the good of the country, an import superstore told The Peninsula.

"Now we auction between 80-100 trailers of produce comparable to 130-150 before the COVID-19 outbreak. The prices are regulated by the ministry (MoCI), and that attracts more people because they can get a better deal here than in hypermarkets. The ministry officials also monitor the market to prevent irregularities and price inflation," the store manager Ali Hamroun, who runs a restaurant in the market, said. Dr. Moraros added: "COVID has brought us to sell vegetables, even though it is far. I prefer buying here because the prices are better than in Doha. From a restaurant, so I can't afford to buy in kilos. Here, I can get them in bulk or wholesale," Hamroun said.

A retailer from Al Wakra said the Al Sailiya market prices are more affordable compared to Al Hamurah market.

"I come here every day from Al Wakra market because the prices are good for me as a retailer. If you go to Doha, some vendors sell their produce at a higher price. Also, I can get fresher vegetables here than in Al Hamurah. Many are concerned about the distance, but I come here from Wakra daily," he said.

Despite rave reviews from locals, the market is still recovering from the spread of the virus. "I prefer the previous environment because it was open and buyers could easily see and access our produce, and they were not enclosed in boxes," he said. Also, many locals said they did not help as much as all were. We were closed for four months, and only just reopened. The turnover has been a bit low compared to what we are optimistic," a vendor said.

The Qatari Forum for Authors organised a lecture entitled Tourism and the Environment to commemorate World Tourism Day (WTD) which falls on September 27 each year. The lecture was held in cooperation with the Friends of the Environment Centre, the Qatar National Tourism Council, the Ministry of Municipality and Environment, the Qatari Forum for Authors, and Aswaq supermarket.

The lecture was addressed by the Qatari Forum for Authors’ member, Ahmed Al Mutawa, and was chaired by the Centre Director, Dr. Jean-Marc Coureau. The lecture was accompanied by the presence of renowned figures, including the Centre Director, who also moderated the discussion. The lecture was attended by students and well respected by the Centre’s academic staff.

Ahmed Al Mutawa praised the efforts of the Centre’s directors and staff, and said that tourism and the environment are complementary and must be studied together. He added that tourism is considered the most important source not only for being a supportive sector for the economy, but also as a way to introduce local heritage and culture.

Regarding the environmental impact of tourism, he said that it was an important task to be discussed and that more interest in domestic tourism is needed to be further promoted. This type of tourism is needed as it increases the mobility of the local community with over 62,200 students who are interested in tourism or environmental project, and it is considered the most important source not only for being a supporter of the economy, but also as a way to introduce local heritage and culture.

Ahmed Al Mutawa explained that the Centre has a valuable contact during times of high demand, well sought out by academic programs are highly interested in the actual outreach of the Centre’s programmes must be prepared to cooperate with the government backed on specific pillar and to make people more aware about these places and activities that can be shared among the community with over 62,200 students who are interested in tourism or environmental project, and it is considered the most important source not only for being a supporter of the economy, but also as a way to introduce local heritage and culture.

Ensuring medical standards

The overall health of a nation is the total sum of its people’s health status, which means healthy people make a healthy nation. But the well-being of the people of the country greatly depends on the available standard of living, nutrition, healthcare facilities, good environment and superior healthcare facilities. In some countries, despite having all these parameters, the health of the general public is marred mainly because of lack of exercise and substance abuse.

In this context, Qatar looks like a typical case. Qatar stands apart with world-class healthcare system and all-encompassing facilities. The country’s medical facilities with state-of-the-art hospitals equipped with best possible technologies and highly trained doctors manned by the best medical practitioners from across the world can bridge the gaps in the healthcare system. While the healthcare system of most of the countries were overcome by the COVID-19 pandemic, Qatar’s healthcare system once again proved its resilience and capacity to face any challenges directly and quickly.

When it comes to providing modern healthcare, experts recommend that the healthcare system and its infrastructure is the most important factor. As the world becomes a global village, countries should work together to help each other. Government healthcare facilities in Qatar have been established in various countries and in the particular case of Qatar, it is a plus for the country.

When it comes to accepting health professionals from abroad, Qatar follows a strict screening and accreditation mechanism to ensure the quality of healthcare services. Qatar has a well-established system that ensures high-quality healthcare services. The government ensures that all medical professionals are licensed and qualified to provide healthcare services in Qatar. The government also ensures that all medical professionals are licensed and qualified to provide healthcare services in Qatar.

The history of epidemics is full of successful battles, but with those battles come the举起的wall of deadly infections. Covid-19’s 3.5 million deaths may pale in comparison to the estimated 50 million lives lost in 1918, but the disease risks continue. Against this backdrop, the travel ban by the UAE, the UK and Spain face a triple threat. In cases, a population infected by deadly epidemic infections, the grim consequences are a foregone conclusion of dually infected cases. Who have people had enough of lockdowns

The World Health Organization (WHO) has been warning about the need for strict lockdown measures to curb the spread of COVID-19 since the beginning of the pandemic. However, with the ongoing pandemic and the economic challenges it has brought, many people have grown tired of the lockdowns and are calling for an end to them. The WHO has been pushing for countries to implement strong measures to control the spread of the virus, but many people are struggling to comply with these measures.

While the WHO has been advocating for strict lockdowns, many people have expressed frustration with the restrictions. They argue that the lockdowns have negatively impacted their livelihoods and mental health. There have been reports of people breaking lockdown rules in order to continue with their daily lives. This has led to concerns about the effectiveness of lockdowns in controlling the spread of the virus.

The WHO has emphasized the importance of continued compliance with lockdown rules, but it has also acknowledged that the pandemic is a long-term battle and that it will take time for the virus to be fully under control. The WHO has called on countries to remain vigilant and continue implementing strong lockdown measures until a vaccine or other effective treatments are available.

In the meantime, many people have expressed the need for a balance between public health and economic survival. They argue that the lockdowns have caused significant economic damage and are calling for measures to be put in place to support those affected by the pandemic. Kuwaiti new Amir H H Sheikh Nawaf Al Ahmad Al Jaber Al Sabah arrives to the airport to receive the body of late Amir H H Sheikh Sabah Al Ahmad Al Jaber Al Sabah, who died after treatment in US, for a funeral at the Sabah Al Sabah palace on Tuesday in the United States.

The new Amir needed the millitary to borrow, as other Gulf nations have done in response to the dual crises.

According to the constitution, the crown prince ascends to power upon an Amir's death. That would leave Sheikh Nawaf with the duty of appointing a new crown prince, which he has one year to do. The new Amir needs the endorsement of parliament for his crown prince nominee. In practice, parliament could reject the Amir's choice, forcing him to submit three fresh nominees for endorsement.

Sheikh Nawaf, born in 1939, has ruled the tiny Gulf state since the 16th Amir, H H Sheikh Sabah Al Ahmad Al Jaber Al Sabah, died in 2006. He has been the country's head of state since July, when the Amir was in hospital after being sworn in at parliament, pledging to defend the Amir's choice, forcing him to submit three fresh nominees for endorsement.

Iraqi liberals agree to further military talks: UN

BRUSSELS – The killing of 16 people has seen the Iraqi government and the Kurdish regional government agree to hold further talks to resolve their differences.

The UN said that the talks are a sign of progress in the country's efforts to stabilize the region and establish a more democratic system.

A rocket attack on a residential home, killing six people, was followed by a series of attacks on oil facilities and government buildings.

The UN also said that it will continue to monitor the situation and provide humanitarian aid as needed.

Iraqi Prime Minister Mustafa al-Kadhimi said that the attacks were a response to the government's efforts to stabilize the country.

He also called for the international community to support Iraq in its efforts to establish a democratic system.

A spokesman for the US military said that it would continue to work with the Iraqi government to ensure the safety of the region.

The US military has been involved in military operations in Iraq since 2003.

The current situation in the region is complex, with the Islamic State group still active in some areas.

The UN is also concerned about the displacement of civilians and the risk of further violence.

The UN has called for an immediate ceasefire and for all parties to respect international law.

The UN has also called for the establishment of an independent international investigation into the attacks.

The UN has warned of the risk of further violence and called for a political solution to the crisis.

Belgium forms new govt after 16-month deadlock

Belgium formed a new government Thursday, ending a 16-month impasse during which coalitions of parties spanning the French- and Dutch-language divides agreed on a four-party coalition.

Belgium has not had a fully fledged government since December 2018, when a four-party coalition collapsed.

The four largest parties, the Socialists, Voorwaarts and Flemish separatists N.V.A. have agreed in a newspaper interview to form a new Dutch-speaking government.

Belgian court okays transfer of Rwanda genocide suspect to UN tribunal

BELGIUM — Belgium's Supreme Court, in a 14-3 ruling Wednesday, approved the transfer of Rwandan genocide suspect Felicien Kabuga to be tried at the International Residual Mechanism for Criminal Tribunals, which will eventually take over all the cases of the former two international tribunals.

Kabuga faces up to 40 years in prison for his part in the 1994 genocide.

France is seeking to extradite Kabuga, who is accused of plotting to finance the rebel Rwanda National Congress, a group that operated behind rebel forces during the genocide.

Since the country's gendarmerie and, more recently, its intelligence agency, turned Kabuga into an internationalwanted fugitive in Rwanda's genocide, outside Paris in May after 25 years of freedom, Kabuga has twice been found by French authorities.

Hungary, Poland hit back at EU ‘rule of law’ report

The foreign ministers of Poland and Hungary said the new institute of comparative law will supply them with information on the state of democracy across Europe and prevent what they called “double standards”.

Hungary and Poland take steps to stop control of the justice system, and especially the judiciary.

In Hungary, it’s a number of government-sponsored laws targeting media freedoms, minority rights, the electoral system and academic and religious freedoms.

One of the proposed tactics is to limit the level of EU funding for member states who do not meet some of the 2012-27 rule of law standards.

The foreign ministers of Hungary are criticizing the idea of having separate rules for them and are calling for“In the new era... the EU doesn’t need to be a preventive tool for early elections”.

The two countries, EU members since 2004, have received many times more EU funding than others during the previous decade and are still spending widely to develop public services, a local analyst said.

The non-governmental organisation behind the initiatives is the European Centre for Constitutional and Environmental Rights, which has been active in various areas of life, from clean and green environment, to economic sovereignty, and urban and social policy.

The two countries, EU members since 2004, have received many times more EU funding than others during the previous decade and are still spending widely to develop public services, a local analyst said.

President Donald Trump and Democratic rival Joe Biden battled for control over Trump’s record on the coronavirus pandemic, healthcare and the economy in a chaotic and had-simmered-for-years furor that was whipped into a tempest by personal insults and Trump’s repeated interruptions.

Trump bulldozed his way through the debate, trying to guilt Biden nearly every moment, while demanding that Democrats were trying to steal the election with mail-in ballots and had violated the sanctity of the military and supercomputers when asked to do so.

Moderate Chris Wallace of Fox News never established the control of the debate, with Trump’s constant interruptions and calls to let Biden speak. The two White House contenders talked over each other and lobbed insults at each other as the political landscape had him for just one more shot. At one point, an exasperated Biden said after Trump’s repeated interruptions: “Will you just let me finish? Joe, you are a walking Unemployment - Presidential Palace in your time limits and talk on for me? I think that the country would have a better decision if both people were allowed to speak with fewer interruptions. I’m Biden urged Americans to vote for him, saying: "I’m the only person who can get it done." But Trump, who has been in office for three years, said he was the only person who could save the economy.

The two candidates were asked about the coronavirus pandemic, which has killed more than 200,000 Americans, and how they would address it. Trump said he was making progress, while Biden said he was taking a more cautious approach.

The debate was the last of three scheduled for the election, with the final one set for October 22.
Facebook enabling cross-app chats with Messenger

An initial launch began yesterday in a few unspecified countries and then rolled out globally soon. The move is likely to figure in antitrust deliberations over Facebook’s acquisitions of Instagram and WhatsApp, which are the subject of several probes. Antitrust experts have raised concerns that the services together could make it more difficult for regulators to break up the company.

Antitrust experts have raised concerns that the services together could make it more difficult for regulators to break up the company. Chudnovsky said no new categories of user data would be swapped between Instagram and Messenger beyond what was already shared, as on the same back-end infrastructure.

In recent years we have transformed our specialist services for older people to ensure this important population receives the highest standard of care possible. We understand very early on that older people are most vulnerable to the complications of the virus and we immediately put in place a range of measures to protect them. These efforts have been central to Qatar achieving one of the lowest COVID-19 mortality rates in the world,” said Dr. Al Hamad.
