Yemenis who were airlifted to Jordan to undergo treatment for critical illnesses this year were brought home yesterday on a flight into the rebel-held capital Sana’a, the United Nations said.

Thirty-one women and children are due to depart for Jordan along with 150 passengers.

A UN flying mission carried Yemenis after their condition had improved, according to the United Nations.

“The flight will carry the women and children to Jordan as part of the medical evacuation programme,” the UN said.

A UN official in Yemen said the women were expected to depart for Jordan on Friday afternoon.

On roads to the city, hundreds of Yemenis lined the way as the flight landed.

Zarif “condolated them on the selection of the new Amir of Kuwait and stressed the support of the Islamic Republic of Iran,” the Iranian foreign ministry said in a statement.

Sheikh Nawaf, who was appointed by the Amir of Kuwait, was met by US Secretary of Defense Mark Esper on his recent return from a trip to Amman in February, the state-run Kuwait News Agency reported.

The meeting comes after the US and Iran have been engaged in a diplomatic crisis following the killing of Iranian General Qassem Soleimani in a US airstrike in Iraq in January.

The two countries have been locked in a口水 war over a range of issues, including Iran’s nuclear program and its support for Hamas in the Palestinian territories.

The meeting is also expected to discuss the ongoing conflict in Yemen, where the US has supported the Saudi-led coalition.

An announcement would be made about the next visit of the US Congress to Kuwait.

“An announcement would be made about the next visit of the US Congress to Kuwait,” the US Embassy in Kuwait said.

The meeting comes as the US and Iran are trying to de-escalate tensions between them.

Last month, the US and Iran agreed to hold their first direct talks in more than a decade in Vienna, aimed at restarting 2015 nuclear deal.

The negotiations are expected to be held in the coming weeks, with both sides hoping to reach a deal by the end of the year.

However, it remains to be seen whether the talks will be able to salvage the nuclear deal, which was abandoned by the US in 2018, leading to a surge in tensions between the two countries.

Nigeria police special reined in over abuse allegations

AP - LAGOS

Nigeria's top police chief on Saturday urged a controversial anti-robbery unit and other special squads from mounting roadblocks and carrying out stop-and-search operations over accusations of abuses.

Inspector-General of Police Muhammad Adamu of the Federal Special Anti-Robbery Squad (SARS) and other tacti- cal squads must stop such operations "with immediate effect," he added in a statement that police officers may no longer work in pairs unless in uniform.

Adamu said the decision was taken following findings that "a few personnel in uncovered tactical squads have abused their position to perpetrate all forms of illegality."

He said two SARS agents and a civilian accomplice have been arrested and accused in Nigeria's economic capital of Lagos of extorting a公民.

Calls have grown in recent months for the police investi- gation branch to be shut down over accusations of unlawful arrests, torture and even murder of suspects.

The unit was already reor- dined in 2021 over similar allegations.

The police chief also warned the special units against the invasion of the privacy of citizens, particularly through indiscriminate searches of mobile phones, laptops and other smart devices.

He said their action was limited to cases of armed robbery, kidnapping and other violent crimes.

The Nigerian Police Force said in a statement that the government had begun an internal investigation into the recent bond killings in Lagos.

Animal rights groups have accused the government and the military of using excessive force and human rights abuses.

The New York City mayor seeks to lock down hotspots

NEW YORK —

New York City Mayor Bill de Blasio said Friday he was eyeing more strict lockdowns in neighborhoods where coronavirus infections have been rising rapidly, adding that he needed governor Andrew Cuomo’s permission to impose the lockdowns. De Blasio said he was considering such measures in several northeast areas that have seen outbreaks, including parts of Brooklyn’s Bushwick and Crown Heights neighborhoods.

But he said he had not yet decided to impose them. In the past 10 days, he said, infections had increased by 40 percent in Bushwick, though the rate was down from 50 percent the week before.

De Blasio said he was considering a 10-day lockdown that would restrict the movement of people and businesses in such neighborhoods. If there is a large outbreak in one area, the city may impose a lockdown there, for example, in the part of the city where the infection is high, he said. De Blasio said he was considering the measures on the advice of Cuomo, who has been working with the mayor on the issue of lockdowns.

De Blasio said that, if he imposes a lockdown, it would be for a period of 10 days. He added, however, that he had not yet decided to impose such a lockdown.
