Top seed Djokovic keeps title bid on track

Novak Djokovic defeated Karen Khachanov in the fourth round to set up the French Open's seventh quarter-final match against Rafael Nadal. Djokovic, who is on a record-equalling 17th Grand Slam singles title bid, won 6-4, 6-3, 6-3 against Russia's 15th seed Khachanov to draw level with Rafael Nadal on a record-equating 17 Grand Slam singles titles.

The Serb's victory earned him a place in the last eight of the French Open for the first time since 2013, after being knocked out in the fourth round by Stan Wawrinka in 2015, losing to Roberto Bautista Agut in 2016, and losing to Grigor Dimitrov in 2017.

Djokovic's win was his 17th straight at Roland Garros, where he has lost just once in his last 30 matches. It was his 17th win in 18 matches at the tournament, having won his last six matches to reach the quarter-finals.

Djokovic faced his toughest test when he met Hyeon Chung of South Korea in the fourth round, but the Serb held his nerve to win 6-4, 6-1, 6-0. The match lasted two hours and 30 minutes.

Serbian beats Khachanov to level quarter-final appearances record in Paris

Novak Djokovic has reached the last eight of the French Open for the first time in three years.

He defeated Karen Khachanov 6-4, 6-3, 6-3 to reach the quarter-finals of the tournament for the third consecutive time. Djokovic has won five of his six matches against Khachanov, having lost in the first round last year.

Will most unpredictable PL season produce surprise champions?

SPORT – LONDON

The most astonishing set of results ever, in an already very unpredictable Premier League season, has thrown the format of the season into question. The league format was never designed to be capable of producing unexpected champions. With Man United having conceded five goals at home in 438 minutes, and Everton’s 6-1 hammering of the Etihad at the Etihad last weekend against Leicester City, the Premier League continued the trend of extraordinary results at Aston Villa.

In their remarkable 7-2 defeat at Aston Villa on Sunday, Liverpool became the first reigning English top-flight champions to ship seven goals in a league match since Arsenal against Sunderland in 1953, but goals-flattening this season are anything but unusual.

The result came hours after Manchester United sealed their joint-hearth Premier League defeat against Tottenham Hotspur, a 6-2 drubbing, with both games contributing to a total of 49 goals in a single Premier League round of matches.

It is just three short of the Premier League record for a single game, which was set last month. This season has already been anything but predictable, but it has only enhanced the excitement.

I rue the Premier League to be a bit more like this season, “believes” former Liverpool defender Jamie Carragher, noting: “If you are talking about 35 teams, it is a bit more like this season.”

Liverpool’s Jurgen Klopp says the side did “everything” as they sealed their first title win since 1990.

Winning amid controversy, the manager has been under pressure throughout the season, and the side’s dominance in the Premier League this season has led to increased attention and scrutiny.

Some argue that Liverpool’s success is due to their talent and tactics, while others criticize their dominance and the impact it has on the league’s competitiveness. However, the Premier League’s title race has been unpredictable, with many teams vying for the top spot.

Liverpool, led by Jurgen Klopp, has shown resilience and adaptability throughout the season, winning a remarkable number of games and scoring a significant amount of goals. Their attacking prowess has been a key factor in their success, as they have scored more goals than any other team in the league.

But the unpredictability of the Premier League season has also seen other teams challenging for the top positions. Manchester City, Chelsea, Manchester United, and others have been consistently competitive, making it difficult for any team to claim an unequivocal advantage.

In conclusion, the unpredictability of the Premier League season has created an exciting dynamic, where no team can be written off, and any result is possible. This unpredictability has added to the drama and engrossing nature of the Premier League, making it a season to remember.
French champion Paris Saint-Germain defender Marco Verratti has been ruled out of Chelsea’s home match at Stamford Bridge due to a knee injury. Verratti was substituted in the 88th minute of Sunday’s 1-0 loss to Bayern Munich in the Champions League final and was replaced by Brazil’s Ricarlison. The midfielder faces a further 10 days on the sidelines.

Chelsea coach Thomas Tuchel has suggested that his team’s performance in the 1-0 defeat to Paris Saint-Germain was a “shameful” display, and has called for a turnaround in the team’s form. Tuchel was unhappy with the team’s performance in the second half, saying that they “were not good enough” and that they “lost their way” after the break.

However, the match also saw a positive moment, as Olivier Giroud reached a milestone in his career. He became the all-time top scorer for France in the UEFA Nations League with his 17th goal in the competition.

Former FIFA President Michel Platini has also weighed in on the match, saying that he was pleased with Giroud’s performance and that he deserved to start the match. Platini praised Giroud’s work ethic and his ability to create chances for himself and his team mates.

Platini added: “Giroud has been one of the best forwards in the world for many years now. He has always been a goalscoring machine and has consistently performed at the highest level.”

The match was a difficult one for Chelsea, who were unable to find the back of the net despite creating several good chances. Giroud was particularly unlucky, missing a number of opportunities to double his goal tally for the match.

Giroud’s misses were compounded by a lack of support from his team mates, who failed to provide him with the necessary service. However, despite the missed opportunities, Giroud continued to work hard and contribute to the team’s efforts to close the gap against the dominant Paris Saint-Germain.

For Chelsea, the match was a stark contrast to their previous displays, with Tuchel’s team struggling to find the rhythm and flow that characterized their impressive displays earlier in the season. The German coach will need to make swift changes if his team is to avoid a repeat of the poor performance seen against the French champions.

Nonetheless, Giroud’s goal in the match against PSG was a moment of redemption for the French striker, who had been found wanting in previous games. Giroud’s ability to rise up to the occasion and deliver the goods is a testament to his character and professionalism.

Man United are also said to be interested in signing the striker, and could make a move in the January transfer window to bolster their attack. However, for now, Giroud will hope to carry on where he left off against PSG and continue his rich vein of form.

Barnes was confident in his side's ability to win the game and emphasized the importance of the match for their UCL campaign. He also praised the performance of centro-forward Antonio Rudiger, who played a crucial role in anchoring the defense and providing stability at the back. The German defender has been in good form lately and has been a vital member of the team’s backline.

Barnes added: “I'm really impressed with the way Rudiger is performing. He's been a rock in the defense and has been instrumental in helping us keep a clean sheet so far. I'm sure he will continue to play a key role in our remaining matches.”

Barnes' confidence in his team's ability to win the game is justified by their recent performances and the fact that they are playing their strongest XI. The team has shown great resilience and determination in recent games, which bodes well for their upcoming matches.

In conclusion, the game against PSG was a crucial one for both teams, with both having high expectations going into the match. barnes’ side showcased their capabilities and made their intentions clear, ultimately securing a vital victory that will boost their confidence and morale. As the team prepares to face other top teams in their group, they will hope to continue their winning streak and prove their worth on the European stage.

Relentless Butler propels Heat to win over Lakers in game 3

The Miami Heat, fueled by a 40-point triple-double from Jimmy Butler, closed their way back into the NBA Finals with a 115-104 victory over the Los Angeles Lakers on Sunday.

The under-manned, under-stood, underdog Heat turned the tables on the Western Conference champions in the NBA’s quarterfinals in Orlando, cutting the deficit in the best-of-seven championship series to two games to one.

“I think we realized that we belong,” Butler said.

They can be, as long as we do what we’re supposed to do.”

Butler scored 40 points, pulled down 11 rebounds and handed out 12 assists to power a Heat team missing injured Bam Adebayo and Goran Dragic for the second straight game.

The injuries to Adebayo and Dragic were a huge blow to the Eastern Conference fifth-seeded Heat’s hopes of pulling off a title upset, but Miami with Butler leading the way declined to back down.

Superstar LeBron James led the Lakers with 23 points, 10 rebounds and eight assists, but it wasn’t enough.

It was Butler’s night.
